The Georgian Inn Bed and Breakfast was the site of a large community turnout as the Chamber and the City of Greenville welcomed new owners Shari and James Triche. The Inn is now offering catering for large or small events as well as lodging their five spacious guest rooms. The open house and ribbon cutting event was well attended with guests being treated to some of the culinary delights created by Chef Shari, in a warm and welcoming atmosphere. Guests were invited to tour the home and garden areas before moving outside for the official ribbon cutting ceremony, with representation from Allen Parham, Meriwether County Chamber of Commerce, Everlene Clay, representing Mayor Bray's office and Charlene Glover, representing Greenville's City Council.

The evening also included a very informative presentation on the theme of "Water", with presentations from Jerry Loftin, Chairperson of the Meriwether County Water and Sewer Authority and Kip Purvis, President, Meriwether County Development Authority. The information presented was comprehensive with emphasis on the role of water and related infrastructure in guiding the growth of an area and the role these two entities have played in facilitating water and sewer infrastructure at Meriwether Park. Purvis also discussed the Governor's Regional Water Council and status of the statewide water plan. Shown in photo, Greg Schmieg representing Meriwether County Chamber of Commerce, Kip Purvis and Jerry Loftin.
